Apple Pay is coming to the vending machine. In a deal struck with USA Technologies, Apple Pay will be available for around 200,000 self-serve payment terminals, including vending machines. Among the things you might find Apple Pay used with are coffee brewers, unmanned kiosks, laundry machines, pay-to-park terminals, or “other self-serve appliances”. The feature will be immediately available on machines running USA’s ePort cashless payment point-of-sale system, while others will need to be retrofitted with the proper hardware to accept Apple Pay.

Unfortunately, we don’t get a solid answer on where those ePort-enabled machines/kiosks are, or how many are in rotation. USA says (<http://www.usatech.com/products-services/eport-connect>) cashless payments via ePort are currently available to “thousands of customers nationwide”. According to The Nilson Report, USA Technologies ranks #6 in the US for POS terminal shipments.

The company I work for vending machines support SoftCard which I found out works with Apple Pay. So I have been purchasing items from vending machines with Apple Pay for some time now.
