

MARKETS

ONLY $1 A WEEK FOR 12 WEEKS
SUBSCRIBE NOW >>

TOP STORIES IN MARKETS 1 of 12

Merger Talks Between J. Crew and Japan'...

2 of 12

Hong Kong's Alibaba Lament

3 of 12

What Will It Take for the Fed to Raise ...

Wal-Mart Can't Reach GameStop's Level

MARKETS

GE Plans Credit-Card IPO as Plastic Gets Popular

New Company to Be Called Synchrony Financial

Email Print Save Comments

ARTICLE FREE PASS
 Enjoy your free sample of exclusive subscriber content.

ONLY $1 A WEEK FOR 12 WEEKS
SUBSCRIBE NOW >>

By ANDREW R. JOHNSON, TED MANN and ALEXANDRA SCAGGS

Updated March 13, 2014 7:00 p.m. ET

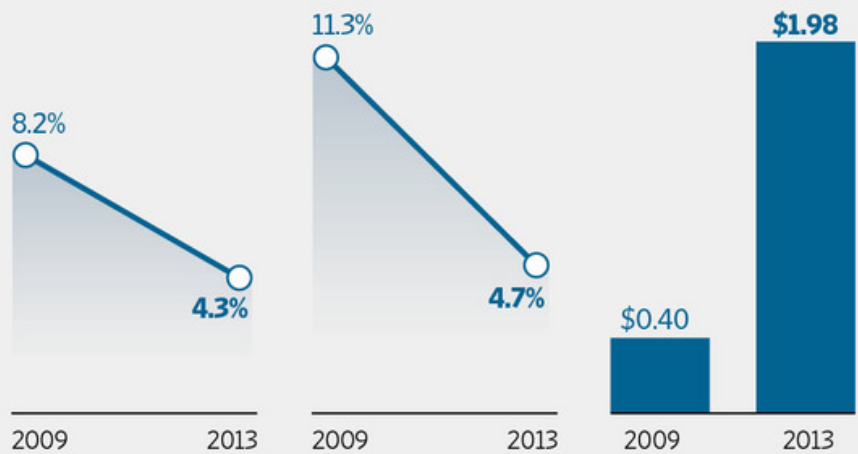

Consumer Rebound

Late payments and uncollectible loans have tumbled at General Electric's Synchrony Financial unit, while profit has surged.

30-day delinquency rate

Net charge-off rate

Net profit, in billions

Source: the company

The Wall Street Journal

Lending to consumers is back in fashion on Wall Street.

General Electric Co. +0.87% said Thursday it will sell part of its credit-card unit in an initial public offering. The move by the Fairfield, Conn., company highlights the renewed investor enthusiasm for the card business after some issuers were hit hard by defaults following the 2008 financial crisis.

The GE unit, which will be called Synchrony Financial, is the largest U.S. issuer of credit cards in the names of retailers and other partners. The company's biggest accounts include the retail giants J.C. Penney Co. -3.45%, Wal-Mart Stores Inc.

+0.12% and Lowe's Inc.

Synchrony could have a value of up to $20 billion, analysts from Bernstein Research

Popular Now

What's This?

ARTICLES

1 Opinion: Romney: The Price of Failed Leadership

2 Success Outside the Dress Code

3 Opinion: Stephens: How Obama 'Gets Things Done'

4 Putin Signs Treaty to Annex Crimea

5 Food Prices Surge as Drought Exact a Toll

VIDEO

New on WSJ.com: All Things Deals >

Follow the Journal's coverage of deals and related issues -- M&A, IPOs, bankruptcy, activist investors, dealmakers, and private equity -- at our new page here.

and generally become more diligent about paying their credit-card bills on time each month. "In the current market, private-label credit cards are enjoying a better profile... than they have in decades," said David Robertson, publisher of the Nilson Report, a payments-industry newsletter.

More customers have been keeping up with their bills, a sign that the economy is getting better. Customers more than 30 days late on their payments fell to 4.3% at the end of last year from 8.2% in 2009, GE said in its filing Thursday. Loans written off as uncollectable tumbled to 4.7% from 11.3% over the same span.

Synchrony financed $93.9 billion in sales last year, with net earnings of $2 billion, down from $2.1 billion in 2012, according to the filing. GE is splitting off the unit in a bid to reduce its dependence on financial-business income.

Consumer lending "is certainly not GE's core business," said Gary Bradshaw, portfolio manager with Dallas-based Hodges Funds, which manages $1.8 billion. "Hopefully they'll be able to redeploy these assets and reaccelerate their earnings."

Gains at the unit underscore the rise of store cards. Outstanding balances on U.S. private-label store credit cards stood at $96.5 billion in 2012, up 4.7% from a year earlier, according to the Nilson Report. At the same time, outstanding balances for general-purpose credit cards were $712.3 billion, down 0.2% from a year earlier.

The improved performance has reignited interest across the credit-card business. Shares in Discover Financial Services, (DFS -0.87%) a major issuer of its own name-brand credit cards, are up more than 80% in the past two years. Auto lender Santander Consumer USA Holdings Inc. (SC +2.91%) increased the size of its IPO earlier this year, though its shares recently fell below their offering price.

Private-label credit cards typically don't bear the logos of card networks such as Visa Inc. (V +1.18%) and MasterCard Inc. (MA +1.40%) and must be used at the specific merchants offering the cards. The programs are attractive to retailers because the cards typically cost less for them to accept than Visa- or MasterCard-branded cards and entail incentive payments and other perks to the retailer for meeting certain transaction thresholds, according to analysts.

Citigroup Inc., the second-largest issuer of store cards, decided to retain its massive partnership-card business in 2011 after having previously deemed it a noncore business and tried to sell the unit.

Lured by the ability to secure long-term relationships with retailers, Capital One Financial Corp. (COF -0.38%) made a big bet on the private-label card business by acquiring the U.S. card unit of HSBC Holdings (HSBA.LN +0.15%) PLC in 2012, making it the third-largest store-card issuer.

The contracts that banks have with retailers for private-label programs often last years, making it difficult for competing lenders to wrestle away business from their competitors.

GE's plan to spin off the business could ratchet up competition for other lenders in the industry, but could present challenges for the unit once it is on its own, analysts said.

By being a stand-alone company, Synchrony may be more aggressive about going after new business to demonstrate growth to investors. In addition, the fact that GE has wanted to shrink its overall financing business may have constrained the unit's ability to grow.

The decision to split off the card business underscores the dilemma facing GE Chief said last year. GE declined to comment on valuation.

As the economy has improved, so has the performance of these so-called private-label credit cards. Borrowers have gotten a stronger grip on their personal finances

1 Malaysia Air MH370: Possible Sabotage, Explained

2 U.S.'s Top Surveillance Plane Hunts for Flight 370

3 Former FBI Agent on Suspicions MH370 Flew for Hours

4 Being a Nonconformist Pays Off, Sometimes

5 Putin on Crimea: 'A Question of Life Importance'

Content From Sponsors

What's This?

10 Most Indebted Members of the U.S. Congress

The Richest

Warren Buffett's 10 Favorite Stocks

Wall St. Cheat Sheet

Best Credit Cards for 2014

NextAdvisor Daily

Goal Zero: Taking Solar Panels Off the Roof and into the Wild

Fox Business

Executive Jeffrey Immelt: Investors don't like GE's heavy exposure to banking, but finance still brings in nearly half of the company's profit. For now, GE is splitting the difference by carving out the retail-finance business and refocusing GE Capital, GE's financial wing, on loans to midsize companies.

Shrinking GE's dependence on finance is key to Mr. Immelt's efforts to raise GE's share price, which has been stubbornly below $30 since the recession. GE shares fell 42 cents Thursday to close at $25.34.

The planned IPO has implications for other consumer-finance businesses, such as OneMain, a lender owned by Citigroup. Deals such as Synchrony and Santander's consumers business "indicate that an exit for OneMain is becoming more viable," said Eric Wasserstrom, analyst with SunTrust Robinson Humphrey.

Write to Andrew R. Johnson at andrew.johnson@wsj.com, Ted Mann at ted.mann@wsj.com and Alexandra Scaggs at alexandra.scaggs@wsj.com

Email Print Save Comments Order Reprints

WSJ In-Depth

Iraqi Officer Takes Dark Turn to al Qaeda

Tales From Flight 370: Life's Small Moments Loom Large

Test Case for World's Central Bankers

Surge in Oil Shipments Sidetracks Other Industries

Losses Pile Up in Pakistan's War on Terror

Activist Investors Put Bondholders in Crossfire

SPONSORED LINKS

Best Culinary Schools

Branding Your Business

Best Hybrids

Best Rated Cars

Best Restaurant Franchises

Best Cell Phone Plans

High Yield Savings Account

Luxury SUVs

Best Checking Accounts

2014 Luxury Sedans

Add a Comment

JOURNAL COMMUNITY

View All Comments \(4\)

Community rules

To add a comment please

Log in

Create an Account

Your real name is required for commenting.

Track replies to my comment

CLEAR

POST

WHAT DOES A DOLLAR GET YOU TODAY?

A ¼ gallon of gas... or stories that go the extra mile?

For a limited time

ONLY $1 A WEEK
FOR 12 WEEKS
SUBSCRIBE NOW»

WSJ SUBSCRIBER'S CONTENT PROVIDES:

- Inform your decisions: with award-winning news and in-depth analysis.
- Access the world: with reporting from 1900+ journalists across 45 countries.
- Speak confidently: with coverage of the global markets, technology, real estate and culture.

Subscribe / Login

Back to Top

Customer Service

Customer Center

New! Live Help

Contact Us

WSJ Weekend

Contact Directory

Corrections

Policy

Privacy Policy

Cookie Policy

Data Policy

Copyright Policy

[Subscriber Agreement
& Terms of Use](#)

Your Ad Choices

Ads

Advertise

Place a Classified Ad

Sell Your Home

Sell Your Business

Commercial Real Estate Ads

Recruitment & Career Ads

Franchising

Advertise Locally

Tools & Features

Apps

Emails & Alerts

Graphics & Photos

Columns

Topics

Guides

Portfolio

Old Portfolio

More

Register for Free

Reprints

Content Partnerships

Conferences

SafeHouse

Mobile Site

News Archive

Jobs at WSJ

Copyright ©2014 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

SUBSCRIBE NOW / ONLY $1 A WEEK FOR 12 WEEKS